Two Fishermen Drowned In Bay

Two commercial fishermen from Escanaba were presumed drowned today after their "snowmobile" had apparently plunged through thin ice Tuesday morning into 100-feet of frigid water 2½ miles southeast of Portage Point in Green Bay.

Missing are Edward Boyle, 57, of 218 N. 10th St., and Irving Dahm, 46, of 1225 Lake Shore Dr.

Efforts to recover their bodies were called off this morning by local police officers because of treacherous ice conditions in the area.

Two state police skin divers called from Marquette and Manistique were not permitted to dive because of the deep water and prevailing cold.

Third Man Safe
Police said the efforts would be resumed Thursday with assistance from other commercial fishermen, who plan to send "running poles" through the ice with drag lines attached.

A third man — Robert Nicholson, 49, of 428 S. 11th St. — who was also feared lost when three jackets were found floating in an ice-clogged hole escaped the tragedy because his two companions failed to pick him up for the trip.

"I was to have gone with Dahm and Boyle but I didn't because they didn't stop to pick me up," Nicholson told police.

The accident was reported to Sheriff's officers at 2 p.m. Tuesday by Henry W. Dahm, brother of Irving, who was called to the scene by another fisherman, Harold W. Olson.

Irving Dahm

Edward Boyle

Olson told police that he had last seen the men shortly before 10 a.m. Tuesday. Several other fishermen with nets in the area said today that they had gone out on the ice about 10 a.m., but did not notice either of the missing men.

Cautious Man
Irving Dahm, the men said, was a life-long fisherman and one of the most cautious of the fraternity of hearty men who brave frosty conditions to fish the bay during the winter. Boyle only fished during the winter, sailing the Great Lakes with a steamship line during summer months.

Henry Dahm said that he had warned his brother Monday that the ice out on the lake had "blown out" in Sunday's wind. "There's open water out there," he told them. "Watch your step."

Sheriff's deputies said that the men, both married but without children, apparently accelerated the "snowmobile" to get through a slushy patch of ice and were unable to stop when they reached the thin ice.

Deputies found three jackets, one which apparently was used as a shield against the cold for the "snowmobile's" radiator, heavy fishermen's mitts and assorted cans and fishing supplies frozen in the ice at the spot.

Shed Clothing
The "snowmobile" was a 1930 Model-A Ford without any top and equipped with iron skis for front wheels. Police theorized that the men freed themselves from the car and were attempting to shed their heavy clothing when they were overcome by the cold water.

Troopers Robert Barr of Manistique and Charles Feldhauser of Marquette, both experienced skin divers, said the original plan called for dropping an anchored line and working in concentric circles around it in an attempt to recover the bodies.

Barr said the decision not to dive was made after learning that water depth was 100-feet in the area and that the ice above it was not safe. State Police divers need special permission to work in depths exceeding 60 feet.

"In the summer we would have gone down," Barr said. "It's just too risky to try it under these conditions."

Home Fire Fatal

LANSING (AP) — Lori Ann McGee, 3, died Tuesday in a fire which destroyed her frame home in suburban Lansing Township. The girl apparently was playing in the living room, where the fire broke out. Her mother, Lilliam Rhodes, suffered burns on one arm. The two were alone. Cause was not immediately determined.

Soviets Violate Nuclear Treaty?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may charge the Soviet Union with violating the limited nuclear test-ban treaty as a result of an underground explosion last Friday in Central Asia.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said Tuesday night the blast has produced some fallout in the northern Pacific near Japan. Officials noted that under the treaty, fallout is supposed to be kept within the boundaries of the testing nation.

Debris Traced

The force of the Soviet blast, set off in the Semipalatinsk area of central Russia, was described by the AEC as "in the intermediate range." This means it was equivalent to the force loosed by 20,000 to 1 million tons of TNT.

Last March, officials said, an underground American test blew radioactive material into the air and the debris was traced over the southwestern part of the United States. However, they said, no radioactivity was detected outside U.S. borders.

Three days after the incident, the Soviet news agency Tass commented that if the fallout went beyond U.S. borders the treaty would be violated.

At 4:30 p.m., about an hour and a half before the AEC announcement, Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin was summoned to the State Department and asked to obtain the information referred to in the statement.

Spending Plans Face Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson begins his first elective term today with minor congressional squalls reflecting the deep iceberg of controversy threatening some of his legislative proposals.

Although calm seas prevailed for inaugural day itself, there was an undertow of irritation among some Democrats and Republicans at the President's economy actions and a freshening wind of opposition by Republicans to his spending proposals.

A call by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana for a speedup on the President's "Great Society" program was met with a demand from Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois for

Estes On Way To U. S. Prison

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Billie Sol Estes was in a four-man county jail cell today on what may be his last stop en route to a federal prison.

He was driven 440 miles from Abilene, Tex., Tuesday by Deputy U.S. Marshal William C. Black.

Estes was arrested at his Abilene home Monday after his $100,000 bond was revoked by U.S. Dist. Judge R. Ewing Thomason of El Paso. That step followed a U.S. Supreme Court decision not to hear Estes' appeal from a 15-year prison term for mail fraud and conspiracy.

His lawyer, John Cofer of Austin, telegraphed Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black Tuesday morning to ask that Judge Thomason's bond revocation order be rescinded.

"adequate time" for a thorough study of individual bills.

No Stalling Tactics
"Diligence is a good thing," Dirksen said in an interview. "But there must be adequate time for a thorough examination of each bill as it comes along. In the interest of sound legislation we must give careful consideration to each measure."

Dirksen said Republicans have no intention of engaging in tactics of obstruction by trying to stall action on administration bills. But he said they will resist to their limited ability any spending proposals they believe unnecessary.

Mansfield said he hopes the $1.07-billion Appalachia area aid bill and a measure to curb pollution of the nation's rivers and streams — both part of the "Great Society" program — will be ready for Senate action next week.

On Priority List
A companion Appalachian aid measure and a bill to provide health care for the elderly through Social Security taxes are on Speaker John McCormack's priority list for House action.

Irritation with the direction Johnson has taken in effecting budget economies in some fields in order to finance expansion in others took the form of a holding action Tuesday on the President's appointment of W. J. Driver as veterans' administrator.

Still Runs Car

DUNDEE, Ill. (AP) — Treasury agents said Albert Mears, 23, arrested at a still on his farm near Dundee told them he didn't sell his product, and explained: "I drink most of it. The rest I put in my car. It makes the car run good."

Churchill Still Clings To Life

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill slept peacefully through the night and his restlessness is gone, his doctor announced today.

A medical bulletin issued just before noon said: "There is little to record. The restlessness has gone and Sir Winston has slept peacefully through the night and morning. There will be another bulletin this evening."

It was the 12th bulletin issued since the 90-year-old statesman suffered a stroke last Friday. "It is impossible, I think, to hope for a favorable outcome," said Dr. Harley Williams, pected confirmation. He said he hopes to keep it tied up until a Senate subcommittee holds hearings on the President's order closing 11 veterans' hospitals.

Headed For Trouble
Mansfield, who led a previous protest by senators against the economy move, said he doesn't believe Driver should be held responsible for the decisions.

This and a forthcoming inquiry into Johnson's cuts in the defense budget represented minor flurries compared with the major controversy the President may face later on some legislative proposals.

His call for a change in the immigration law, his suggestion for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act provision permitting states to enact so-called right-to-work laws and his proposal to extend minimum wage coverage appear headed for trouble.

On the other hand, Johnson's prospects for getting action on health care, an expanded education aid program and a cut in excise taxes appear bright. He also seems likely to get through Congress a big new health center program and an increased authorization for what he calls his war on poverty.

Record Throng Attends Chilly Capitol Rites

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lyndon Baines Johnson, 36th president of the United States, renewed his oath of office today.

Standing bareheaded in the cold before a great throng massed at the Capitol's east portico, the Texan solemnly repeated the historic oath:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. So help me God."

His left hand rested on his mother's well-worn Bible, and his right hand was raised.

For the inauguration, marking the beginning of his first four-year term in the White House, Johnson wore a business suit of Oxford gray, almost black.

A cold breeze swept the winter scene. For the historic ceremony and the parade pageantry and gaiety to follow, the security was unparalleled in American history.

The oath was administered by Earl Warren, white-haired chief justice of the United States, who wore his black robe.

Earlier, House Speaker John W. McCormack had given the vice-presidential oath to Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, also swept into office in the deluge of votes last November.

Marine Band Plays
The ceremonies included patriotic selections by the U.S. Marine Band.

Prayers were offered up too by the Rev. George R. Davis of the National City Christian Church, Washington, the denomination to which Johnson belongs. The minister beseeched:

"Help our President, O God, to help us keep remembering that we are one family as a nation, and that we are but one nation in a family of nations..."

Parade Shortened

The parade — stepping off time 1:30 p.m. — was greatly shortened in comparison to past years. The President, up near the front, planned to review it until the end at the White House, and the aim was to get it past him before sundown, at 5:16 p.m.

No War Weapons

Though half of the 9,000 marchers are military men, spick and span service academy boys and crack adult warriors, there is a notable absence of such things as rockets, missiles, atomic cannon. And no war jets streaking overhead.

The parade roster included adorable girls galore, befeathered Indian horsemen and mountain men in buckskins, 34 floats plus a mobile art gallery from Virginia, 54 bands, Miss America and Miss Indian America.

Tuesday night was a breathless round of parties, concert-going and late-night dancing. Spotted in the swirling crowds were Democrats who helped Johnson to glory, Medal of Freedom winners, Medal of Honor winners, artists, renowned musicians and just plain citizens.

A number of Republican leaders got in on the festivities, too. A big reception for governors included such men as Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, George Romney of Michigan.

They were here to show that an inauguration is no mere partisan event — it's symbolic of a nation drawing together.

Greek Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos.

Six limousines had brought the presidential party from the White House to the Capitol. In the first were the President, the First Lady and Sen. B. Everett Jordan of North Carolina, chairman of the joint congressional committee on the inauguration.

The inauguration ceremony proper was but the first of three major events. The others:

—The grand parade down Pennsylvania Avenue, the "Thoroughfare of Presidents." By suggestion of Johnson, the parade was stripped of much of the military might displayed in the past — it was intended, instead, to stress the nation's peaceful achievements, past, present and to come.

—The ball, spread over a huge armory and four big hotels. The President and the vice president, Hubert H. Humphrey, will look in tonight at all these balls, where some 27,000 dressed-up people will dance, if they have the temerity. The First Lady readied her dress of jonquil, double-woven satin, Mrs. Humphrey hers of shimmering lavender.

Guns On Rooftops

Security forces were bent on doing all possible to protect the President. Though the exuberant Johnson would much rather ride unguarded and free to mingle, the word was that he had agreed to go in the re-armed presidential limousine, equipped now with a bubbletop of 1½-inch glass.

Augmented details of riflemen took up stations on the rooftops; every manhole was scrutinized. The bullet-resistant glass shields were in place at the Capitol for the inaugural address, and at the White House parade-reviewing pavilion.

But 1,200 troops forming the honor guard along the line of march left their rifles in barracks. Officials were said to feel that this would be too many weapons for complete control — that somebody masquerading as a soldier might slip into the ranks. Even Indians in the parade were requested to remove arrowheads from their arrows.

Romney Draws Attention At Inaugural Rites

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican Gov. George Romney, who has shown a knack in getting in on Democratic-sponsored shindigs, got more attention at pre-inaugural events than some members of President Johnson's own party.

As a matter of fact, the President spent more time chatting with two Republican governors — Romney and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York — than with most Democratic state executives when he called at a reception for governors Tuesday night.

"Pick Up The Phone"

The President was heard to tell Romney, a possible GOP presidential nominee in 1968, the White House would welcome any ideas for him.

"Just pick up the telephone, governor, and call me anytime," Johnson told Romney during a four-to-five-minute conversation.

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Johnson. Romney was accompanied by his wife, Lenore.

The Romneys also were visited by Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey and by Lynda Bird Johnson, the President's daughter, who arrived with her escort, former Marine Lt. David Lefevre.

At a bipartisan breakfast for Michigan's congressional delegation, Democratic Rep. Charles Diggs ribbed Romney about political ambitions, saying:

"I suspect the governor's real purpose in riding down Pennsylvania Avenue this year will be to look over the parade route for the future."

Williams Attends

Another guest at the breakfast honoring Republican Rep. Gerald F. Ford of Grand Rapids, newly elected Republican House leader, was former Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

The breakfast was sponsored by Diggs and Rep. Martha Griffiths, the state's two senior Democrats.

Mrs. Griffiths described Ford's election by fellow Republicans as "a really great honor to Michigan."

Ford and Diggs said the breakfast was an indication of the ability of the state's congressmen to put aside political differences and work together for the benefit of the state.

Buried In Salt, Worker Rescued

DETROIT (AP)—Milton Cox, 45, of Detroit, stepped into a hopper to unclog salt-loading machinery at the Morton Salt Co. Tuesday and was buried under tons of rock salt. But Detroit police say quick work by fellow workers freed him. He was not injured but police said he was treated for shock at a medical center.

Shockers From The U. P. War On Poverty Projects Shows Schooling Need

By JEAN WORTH

MARQUETTE — Members of county committees helping Northern Michigan University with its experimental and demonstration project attacking rural poverty didn't believe that there were young persons in their counties who couldn't read.

If you can't read you can't write, of course, and if you can't write, how can you fill out a time card, even if somebody does offer you a job?

But the 31 school dropouts — 17 to 25 years of age — recruited for Northern's first class in the project weren't apt to get a job without some help. They weren't equipped for a job.

They're being schooled for employment now in a demonstration project being watched with national interest as the federal and state governments plan the war on poverty.

The Upper Peninsula Advisory Committee on Northern's E&D Project met on campus here Tuesday with Ivan Ryan, project director, to hear report on progress of the experiment. Everyone identified with the project seemed enthused about it, mingling the good feeling of sharing in a humanitarian work with the satisfaction that comes from promise of solid accomplishment in educational research of development.

Area Criticism

Claud Bosworth, NMU vice president of public services, said selection of Baraga, Mackinac and Schoolcraft had brought some criticism. "Why were we picked out for study of illiteracy?" critics in the study areas asked.

"We were told," said Bosworth "that we should be pursuing excellence, not backwardness. But it is Northern's aim to give people a chance to try the pursuit of excellence at every level."

Russell Adams, NMU director of business and industrial services, explained that the project is in two phases; training of a class of school dropouts on campus, and seeking on-the-job training opportunities for persons in the three counties through local committee action with the aid of three coordinators: James Becker, Schoolcraft; Robert Liberty, Baraga; and Roger LaBonte, Mackinac.

No Flush Toilets

The project started Aug. 15 with 22 months of activity projected. Campus training of a class of 31 men and women from 17 to 25 started Nov. 16. Last week two members dropped out and were replaced by two others. The dropout rate is considered very low in view of the nature of the project.

It has revealed some social conditions which will be surprising to other than welfare workers: Earth floor dwellings, people unfamiliar with flush toilet operation, persons with no spare underclothes, with only two pairs of socks; persons who slept in their clothing.

Northern has been able to help the class into new social habits and dress which fits it into campus living effectively. Ivan Ryan said that it is believed that the instruction in job orientation will be as helpful to the class — and probably more so — than the job skills it will be taught. "We may not change attitudes, but at least they'll know that the boss is the boss," he said.

Not Known

He said the members had joined the class chiefly because of good recruiting, but that it also had been motivated by prospect of upgrading its income. All but 4 members had

Dog In Need Of Good Home

Anybody want to give a cute beagle pup (she's only a few months old) a good home?

Right now she's in the Delta Animal Hospital recovering from injuries suffered in a traffic mishap. The car won in the encounter, of course, and the dog was picked up later by a boy, Roger Anderson of 513 S. 14th St. The accident was Saturday night in the 500 block, S. 14th St.

Roger talked to his aunt, Martha Gehring, 217 S. 6th St., about the injured beagle and she took the animal to the hospital.

"She's coming along just fine," she said. "No broken bones and she is as good as new. We hope that her owner will recognize and claim her. If not, then we can only hope that she will find a good home with a new owner."

Interested persons are asked to call Miss Gehring at ST-6-1631 during the day and ST-6-6325 after 5:30 p. m.

The beagle is brown, black — and gentle.

P.E.O. Chapter Anniversary Meeting Thursday

An anniversary meeting of Chapter Z, P. E. O. Sisterhood, will be held at the home of Mrs. John Walbridge at 8 p. m. Thursday. Mrs. Robert Kroemer and Mrs. Burton Butler are assistant hostesses.

This date, Jan. 21, marks the 96th anniversary of the founding of the P. E. O. Sisterhood at Iowa Wesleyan College, Mount Pleasant, Iowa. The seven founders pioneered in the organization of the society for that time there were few such societies for women in the entire world. P. E. O. has grown from the original seven in 1869 to an international organization in 1965 of 3,823 chapters with 151,792 active members.

The philanthropic projects supported by the organization are a loan fund for girls—this student loan fund is more than 60 years old, a loan fund for foreign women students and Cotley College, Nevada, Mo., which the society owns and operates.

In observance of the annual Founder's Day, a dramatic skit will be given at Thursday's meeting. Miss Elizabeth Leiper is chairman of the Chapter.

Altrusa Club Members Hold Dinner Meeting

Members of Escanaba Altrusa Club held their regular dinner meeting at the Stone House Monday evening.

After a brief business session Mrs. John Fawcett introduced the guest speaker, Miss Bernadette Brennan, a member of the Escanaba Area High School faculty. Miss Brennan outlined the program of a series of Encyclopedia Britannica films being used in the high school. These films are co-sponsored by the Altrusa Club and the public schools and are of interest to students, teachers and parents.

The series, "Introduction to the Humanities," is based on great dramatic literature and will be presented to the general public in the near future.

Lois Cayemberg, Altrusa's scholarship recipient at Bay de Noc College this past term, expressed her appreciation to the group for assistance in furthering her education.

Outdoor Play Is Workshop Topic

A workshop to assist persons wanting to develop outdoor recreation facilities will be held in Escanaba from 2 to 5 p. m., Jan. 26, in the State Office Building.

Supporting the theme "Opportunity Outdoors," a panel of specialists will discuss trends and opportunities in rural recreation and will review specific assistance available in developing such projects as trout ponds, hunting preserves, park and picnic areas and any other attractions.

The Jan. 26 workshop is being arranged by the Upper Peninsula Committee on Area Progress with the assistance from Michigan State University.

Landowners and others interested in recreation developments from throughout the central Peninsula are invited to attend.

David O. Garrard, UPCAP industrial development specialist, will preside at the meeting and panelists will include R. T. Hartwig, Marquette, Michigan State University agricultural economist; Sherwood Trotter, supervisor, Hiawatha National Forest; Del Meister, Marquette, area supervisor, U. S. Soil Conservation Service; Glenn Gregg, Marquette, manager, Upper Peninsula region, Michigan Conservation Department; Kenneth Dorman, Marquette, manager, Upper Michigan Tourist Association; and Orrin Gruetzmacher, Menominee, advertising counsel.

Catholic Clergy Join U.P. Meet

Catholic clergy of the Diocese of Marquette will participate this year in the 7th annual Upper Peninsula Pastors' Conference at the invitation of the conference committee.

The Upper Peninsula Pastors' Conference is sponsored annually by the Michigan Council of Churches, Northern Michigan University and the University of Michigan. It will be held on Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 22 and 23 on the campus of Northern Michigan University at Marquette. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor Edmund Szoka, speaking for Bishop Thomas L. Noa, estimated that 50 or more Catholic clergy will attend as guests of the conference.

The conference theme this year is "The Quest for Renewal in the Church" and the major speaker of the conference will be Dr. Carl E. Braaten, professor of systematic theology and ethics, Lutheran Theological Seminary, Maywood, Ill.

Some of the Catholic clergy will participate with Protestant clergy in the reaction panels which will follow three lectures by Dr. Braaten. Some 60 to 75 Protestant clergy attend this conference each year.

Information about the conference may be obtained from University of Michigan Extension Service, State Office Building, Escanaba.

Great Inaugural

President Johnson is being inaugurated today in what Washington observers describe as the greatest inaugural party in the history of the nation.

The inaugural isn't significant historically in the same way that the President's State of the Union message is in indicating administration intentions, except as it shows the hankering of the chief of state for ceremony and the window dressing that shows off the cast—and especially the star.

The inauguration — it's estimated that it'll cost persons who attend all its events and stay for the duration (Washington hotels have a four day minimum on occupancy) about $2,000 apiece — should be especially welcome to Lyndon Johnson. It is impossible to conceive of Cal Coolidge enjoying it in the same "you all come" manner as the Texan in the White House.

This is all in the American spirit and the inauguration of the President is an expression of it, varying as much as the Presidents do, and reflecting the times in which they pick up the great burdens of the presidency.

At the last inauguration, President Kennedy deferred to tradition established by President Millard Fillmore in 1850 and wore a high silk hat, although President Eisenhower before him had ducked it to wear a homburg. George Washington wore a tricorn, the three-cornered hat fashionable in his day, says Encyclopaedia Britannica. Franklin D. Roosevelt wore no hat at all to his fourth inauguration in 1945 as there was no parade.

President Lyndon Johnson has already scored a first by being the only president ever to take the oath of office from a woman. He was sworn in by Judge Sarah Hughes in Dallas after assassination of President Kennedy. Four presidents never were inaugurated — Andrew Johnson, John Tyler, Millard Fillmore and Chester A. Arthur — because they succeeded to office after the death of a president and were not later elected.

The informality that President Johnson likes has lots of precedent. Thomas Jefferson walked from his lodgings to the unfinished Capitol to take the oath of office. Andrew Jackson rode horseback. Washington went in a coach of state.

Automobiles were used in the inaugural parade for the first time late — in 1921 — when Presidents Harding and Wilson shared a car. James Polk's inaugural address was the first reported by telegraph — by Samuel F. B. Morse, the inventor of the telegraph himself — and Herbert Hoover's was the first to be aired by radio around the world although Calvin Coolidge's had been the first to be aired.

First movie record of an inaugural was of William McKinley's in 1897 and President Eisenhower was the first President inaugurated before television cameras with national hookup, although TV had given limited circulation to President Truman's 1949 inaugural address.

There is a hazard of the inauguration which the nation hopes President Johnson will not suffer. One president's death was attributed to the activities of inaugural day — a rainy parade day and a strenuous ball afterwards. President William Henry Harrison died of pneumonia a month after the exposure he suffered.

President Johnson has developed his own distinctive style of oratory, with the pauses between sentences about as long as the sentences, and history will note this in its account of Wednesday's ceremonies. But it is altogether unlikely that he will set a record for either brevity or length.

President Washington gave the shortest inaugural address in history before his second term. It contained only 135 words. He ended by saying: "If it shall be found during my administration of the Government I have in any instance violated willingly or knowingly the injunctions thereof, I may be subject to the upbraids of all who are witness of the solemn ceremony."

He spoke in Philadelphia. His first inauguration was in New York and it wasn't until the fourth inauguration that the ceremony was in Washington. There weren't many to hear his words and if they could not hear them unaided they could not hear them at all. It wasn't until President Harding's inauguration that a public address system was used.

For President Johnson the preparations for the persons who won't be there were more elaborate than for those who attended.

"O.K., Mac, I'll Take Over!"

Wood Industries Advance, Change Sharply In 1964

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The forest products industry, comprised chiefly of lumber and paper mills, continued to modernize in 1964 to keep up with technical progress and foreign competition.

In the woods, modernization took the form of new types of planting, harvesting and hauling equipment, the most dramatic of which probably was balloon logging. Field tests showed that helium-filled "vee balloons" offer a practical way to lift heavy loads of timber out of the forest, and thereby eliminate the necessity for expensive road building in some areas.

The U. S. Forest Service will release, possibly early in 1965, its report on the latest nationwide appraisal of the forest resources. Preliminary figures, subject to revision, have indicated a favorable balance of wood growth over drain, with possible shortages in some species.

Utilization of each log harvested also continued to improve. Industry found better ways to process felled trees so that there was less waste in the forest. In big, industrial operations, limbs and even bark are put to use. Twenty-five years ago this was unheard of. Then, only about 40 per cent of a tree was used. Today the figure is as high as 90 per cent.

A revolutionary breakthrough in the making of paper from sawdust was achieved when a West Coast paper company put into operation a continuous sawdust-and-shavings digester. Raw materials enter the digester at one end and after cooking emerge in a continuous flow from the other end of the huge, inclined vat as chemical pulp. The project has been so successful the company has ordered additional digesters. The cost savings in the use of sawdust and shavings is of major importance to the pulp and paper industry.

Tree planting in 1964 is believed to have kept pace with the previous year's reforestation of 1,326,688 acres of forest plantings and 36,000 acres of windbarrier plantings. In that year nurseries shipped 1 billion, 8 million little trees.

Industry seed orchards, managed for the production of superior seed from superior trees, continued to increase in numbers. These orchards are now beginning to bear seed from which superior trees may be grown.

Enrollment in the American Tree Farm System, the industry's voluntary woodlot improvement program, grew to 28,000 tree farmers and 65 million certified acres.

The pressure of recreation demands on forest lands continued to occupy the attention of forest industry leaders. Land-use conferences, under auspices of the forest products industry, were held across the country for the purpose of obtaining the public views on "how best to use the forest lands of the nation to meet the social, economic and spiritual needs of the American public." The forest products industry continued to demonstrate its own interest in multiple use of the forest by keeping open to the public some 65 million acres of industrial timberlands for recreation use. As the year closed, a big problem facing industrial and private forest landowners, if not the general public, seemed to be the accelerated flow of lands into government ownership. Of the 770 million acres of land already owned by the federal government—one out of every three acres in the 50 states—515 million acres are classified forest and wildlife lands.

Passage of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act by the 88th Congress, providing millions of dollars for further land acquisition by the federal and state governments on a matching-fund basis, is seen as a major threat to private forestry.

In mill operations, the big story in 1964 was the trend toward integrated operation. No longer can a paper mill, for instance, concern itself with the production of only paper. To survive in a most competitive industry, it must now diversify its output. Many companies have built plants for the manufacture of chemicals from wood, and are turning out multiple forest products under what is technically called "integrated operation."

A single day's production by a major pulp and paper company, for instance, may include newsprint, fine papers, cardboard boxes, building papers, kraft papers; carloads of composition boards and paneling; and tons of chemicals—tars, solvents, oils, sugars and the like. Included also among these byproducts would be dog food, human drugs—such as DMSO, the miracle drug find of the year—and even human food. Not too many people are aware that photo film, flavorings such as vanilla, and products such as rayon and cellophane are wood-derived.

The forest products industry in the deep South entered a new phase of growth with the advent of several new plywood plants that use Southern pine as the laminate base. Heretofore, the production of plywood centered mostly in the West where there are abundant supplies of firs and other species that lend themselves to plywood manufacture.

Meanwhile, the standard products continued to flow from mills and factories in increasing quantities.

Burch Is Hardy

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — This apocryphal story about Defense Secretary Robert McNamara is currently making the rounds in the Pentagon:

When one of his aides showed up at work with a severe virus, McNamara was instantly sympathetic. "Gosh, you'll have to take care of yourself," the secretary consoled. "It's not wise to take chances with those things."

"Now you be sure to leave the office every evening by 8 until you feel better."

Dean Burch has a pat method of dismissing the post-election criticism of his performance as Republican national chairman.

"It reminds me," he says, "of the comment of Marshal Joffre, the French World War I commander when he was asked whether he could be credited with winning the Battle of the Marne."

"The marshal answered: 'I do not know who is responsible for winning the battle. But if we had not won, I know who would have lost it.'"

Addressing Washington's National Press Club, Burch—reflecting on the 1964 campaign—said: "I can't say there were not mistakes made on our side."

Later, a reporter asked him to name some mistakes. Burch paused, then answered: "Well, uh, like entering the campaign."

Several months ago, Sen. Mike Monroney, D-Okla.—defeated Jan. 4 by Sen. Russell Long, D-La., for the majority whip post—decided to buy his wife a Volkswagen for Christmas.

Since the whip automatically receives a chauffeur—driven Cadillac, Monroney put off the purchase until after the election. If he won, he figured, his wife could take over his car. Returning to his office after the election, Monroney was greeted anxiously by his staff who had not yet heard of Long's victory. The senator broke the news gently.

Ann Landers

We All Have Miser Stunts

Dear Ann Landers: My husband thinks nothing of spending $200 on fishing equipment or $175 on a camera but he will slit a tube of toothpaste down the middle with a razor blade after he has squeezed it to death, to make sure he gets every last ounce of toothpaste out of it.

This man is a busy executive. When I see him spending time in the morning performing this penny ante trick it burns me up.

Last night he was sewing something. When I asked what he was doing he said, "This shoe lace is good for another few months."

What's the matter with him? He's extremely generous about everything else. Can you explain it? — MRS. SKINFLINT

Dear Mrs. Flint: We all have our pet miser stunts. Your husband happens to be tight about toothpaste. The President of the United States goes around the White House turning out lights. I'm overly-thrifty when it comes to lipstick. If it's a shade I especially like I will use the stick down to the last 64th of an inch. Then I'll go after what's left with a hairpin.

How about you? No pet miser stunts?

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't throw this letter away if you think I sound like a screwball. I need your opinion.

I'm 29, have a good build, and I'm not bad looking. The trouble is my hair has been falling out and I'm getting bald. I've spent a fortune on creams, stimulants, pomades and every kind of treatment you can think of. Nothing seems to help.

Recently a friend told me of a new hormone cream that his brother-in-law is putting on the market. It sounds logical. Listen to this: Not many women get bald because of the hormonal structure of the female. This cream is made up of female hormones. The hormones are actually from female monkeys, not humans, so there is no danger that the user will wind up with womanly ways, if you get what I mean.

Tell me, Ann, do you think this cream will help? — WILLING WALLY

Dear Wally: Yes, it will help — your friend's brother-in-law. If enough suckers buy it he will get very rich.

My advice: Go to your doctor and find out if you have a scalp

The Doctor Says:

'Platelets' Have Purpose

By Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt

Q — I am in the late 60s and have a platelet count of 25,000. I get black and blue spots all over my body and have taken cortisone for two years. What is the function of the platelets? What are the dangers in having a low count?

A — You probably have what is known as "thrombocytopenic purpura." This means purpura, or hemorrhages under the skin, due to a deficiency of thrombocytes or blood platelets.

Although a deficiency of platelets may be caused by a great variety of drugs, cortisone is not one of them. Other drugs used to treat arthritis such as gold, phenylbutazone and colchicine, however, could cause it.

The normal platelet count is 200,000 to 400,000. Platelets are so fragile they are lost in an ordinary transfusion, but with special equipment transfusion may be of benefit to victims of thrombocytopenic purpura.

The function of platelets appears to be to preserve the integrity of the blood capillaries. When the platelet count is low the capillaries break very easily. That is what causes the bleeding under the skin, which shows as black and blue spots.

In thrombocytopenic purpura, the spleen destroys the platelets faster than your blood system replaces them. For this reason the spleen is removed as a part of the treatment. It is especially important to have the spleen removed before having any other operation, if uncontrollable hemorrhage is to be prevented.

Q — What is virus pneumonia? Is it serious?

A — Whereas ordinary pneumonia is caused by bacteria that can be seen under a microscope, atypical or virus pneumonia is caused by one of several viruses.

It usually develops slowly in contrast to the bacterial type and is much milder, but the period of convalescence is more prolonged.

Q — What harm can result from treatment of the nasal sinuses with silver protein? Is there any other form of treatment for chronic sinusitis?

A — Prolonged use of excessive amounts of silver protein in the nose will cause silver poisoning.

Chronic sinusitis is often difficult to cure. It may be made worse by overtreatment. It is essential to establish free drainage from the sinuses.

If nasal decongestants do not accomplish this purpose an operation may be necessary.

Q — My husband recently developed psoriasis. Can I get it from him?

A — The cause of psoriasis is not known. We do know it is not contagious.

Sheriff: Dog Warden Needed To Man Office

Sheriff Clarence A. (Cully) Johnson said Wednesday there isn't anything he can do about the situation which has left Delta County with a part-time dog warden and indicated that unless the Board of Supervisors can reach a solution—like adding funds for another deputy to the Sheriff's budget—the situation would remain.

The Board of Supervisors is expected to consider the issue at its regular meeting at the County Building at 10 a.m. Monday.

The basic problem, according to the sheriff, arose when the department shifted to a 40-hour work week at the first of the year. To man the office on a full-time basis and still maintain some patrol duty, Johnson said he has had to schedule dog warden Hector Larson as "night relief man" four days each week.

Schedule Problems

This has left Larson free only one day each week to perform his usual duties as dog warden, which, according to reports from Escanaba and Gladstone city police, is not enough to adequately control dogs.

Johnson said in past years, with deputies working 48 to 56 hours per week, Larson had been kept free. It doesn't work that way now, he said.

"We've gone over and over this schedule," he said, pushing a tattered sheet across his desk. "With Hector working nights it comes out perfect. There just isn't any other way to do it and stay within 40 hours."

The Board of Supervisors authorized the 40-hour work week for Sheriff's deputies last October.

New Deputies

Besides Sheriff Johnson, the department is manned by Undersheriff Joseph Hillewaert and deputies John Hemes, Paul Corcoran, Larson, and newcomers Fred Gasperick and John Hillewaert.

Gasparick, 44, of Rte. 1, Bark River, replaced John Peltier, Jr., who resigned after eight years of service to accept a position with Chicago & North Western Railway. Hillewaert, 42, of 1320 Dakota Ave., Gladstone and son of Undersheriff Joseph, was hired as an addition to the staff to help compensate for lost hours from the 40-hour work program.

Neither man has had any police training, though Gasparick has worked as an "extra deputy" for the department on and off during the past four years.

Gasparick has been employed by several construction firms as an inspector and engineering aid and at one time worked for the Michigan Highway Dept. in the same capacity. He is married and the father of 10 children.

Work Night Shifts

Hillewaert worked most recently as a seaman for Hanna Steamship Co. A life-long resident of Gladstone, he is married and has two children.

Both men have been assigned to the night shifts with the Sheriff's Dept., which operates on three eight-hour shifts, from midnight to 8 a.m., from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and from 4 p.m. to midnight.

Generally, one man staffs the office on the two night shifts with either two or three officers on duty during the normal daytime shift for office work or traffic patrol.

Mineral Club Meets Thursday

As a special feature of its monthly meeting for January, the Bay de Noc Gem & Mineral Club will present a unique method of generating interest in different types of rocks and minerals.

Details will be presented at the meeting to begin at 7:30 p.m., Thursday in Room 104 of the Escanaba Junior High School. Those attending should use the north entrance on 16th St.

Tom Hughson, president, asks those attending to bring an auction specimen. This is one of several meetings that will emphasize identification of rocks and minerals.

Any one interested in any phase of "rockology" is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Troubles Ahead For Peninsula

EAST LANSING (AP)—Michigan's general economic outlook for 1965 is excellent but the Upper Peninsula is likely to have continued troubles, a Michigan State University business specialist says.

Leo Erickson, director of MSU's Bureau of Business and Economic Research, discussed the 1965 outlook in the "Michigan Economic Record," a bureau publication.

"The U. P. can be expected to show gains in such areas as tourism, shipping and iron ore production," Erickson says.

"However," he adds, "such gains will not be sufficient to do more than make a dent in the U. P.'s relatively unfavorable economic position, as reflected in its unemployment rate in excess of nine per cent."

In the state's agricultural sector, he says, the best that can be expected is a repeat of the past few years, in which total net income remained virtually constant.

Consumer spending may drop when it comes time for Michigan residents to pay their 1964 income tax bills, he adds, explaining:

"Apparently, despite repeated advance warnings, most people are going to find that on April 15 they will have a rude shock when they discover withholding payments have not been as high as they thought."

Key to the state's over-all economic success, Erickson says, is a production goal of close to 10 million vehicles by the auto industry.

Roy Bergstrom Buys Building At Bark River

Roy Bergstrom has purchased one of the historic buildings in the village of Bark River from the John G. Gauthier estate.

The property, originally a grant to the Chicago & North Western Railroad in 1873, was sold to Luke D. McKenna in 1882. Martin Rood acquired the property in 1889 and after changing hands several times it was finally sold to the late John B. Frechette in 1895. He had the south half of the present building built some time later.

In 1903, Michael J. Hutt, a cabinet maker, bought it for a boarding house and added the north portion of the present building for more rooms. In 1908 the Hutt's moved out west and J. B. Frechette acquired the property for a second time. It was rented for use as a boarding house for a period of time. Those doing so included the late Joseph Rheame and Richard Viau families.

In the early 20's the building was remodeled into three apartments and was sold in 1937 to the late John G. Gauthier. An oil station was built on the highway and the house made into four apartments.

Bergstrom remodeled and redecorated the interior to some extent and did some face lifting to the exterior. More work is planned when warm weather comes. The building is presently occupied by Mr. and Mrs. William Bergstrom and the Clifford Sahn family.

City Employees Elect Officers Of Credit Union

Officers and directors and other members of the official family of the Escanaba Municipal Employees Federal Credit Union were elected at a meeting at the Elks Club on Saturday.

Joseph Pryal is president, Francis Farrell, vice-president, John DeChantal, clerk, and Alma Gasman, treasurer.

Members at large are Eugene Merrell, Francis Costley and John Finn, and appointed to the Supervisory Board were Carmel Olsen, Kathleen Todd and Marlin Williams.

Members to aid the Board are Joseph Paterek and Milton Embs; loan officers appointed are Modest Huthibise and Robert Gasman; and elected to the Credit Committee were Edwin Olson, Donald Guindon and Robert Gasman.

The evening of business and pleasure was enjoyed by 147 persons. Wellington Hinze, Michigan state manager of CUNA Mutual Insurance Society, was the speaker. He is formerly treasurer of the local credit union.

Direct Relief Spending Falls

The number of direct relief cases in Delta County in October declined from the figure for October, 1963, and so did the spending, reports the State Department of Social Welfare.

There were 90 cases compared with 93 a year ago and spending was $6,776 compared with $7,974.

Nine of the 15 Upper Peninsula counties had fewer direct relief cases in October than a year ago. Most of the money goes to supplement spending for care of nursing home patients in Delta County.

The counties with increases were Baraga, Chippewa, Dickinson, Gogebic, Marquette, and Menominee. The total for the U. P. was 1,422 cases compared with 1,389 a year ago, and spending was $94,708 compared with $97,679.

Schoolcraft had 27 cases, down from 60, and spent $3,328 compared with $2,167 a year earlier.

Greatest increase was in Gogebic County, hit by mining industry collapse, with 339 cases compared with 261 a year ago, and with spending up from $17,303 to $20,702. Houghton, a chronic relief area, had 220 cases, down from 236, and spent $17,791 compared with $18,982 a year ago.

Pinecrest Medicare Facility at Powers, operated by Delta, Menominee and Dickinson counties, reported it spent $41,953 on patient care in the month, of which $35,435 was on medicare patients. Its per day rate was $10, compared with $8.74 in Gogebic, $7.21 in Houghton and $9.11 in Iron counties in the U. P., and with a state low of $5.40 in Lenawee County downstate and a state high of $21.09 in Oakland County downstate.

Daughter Luci Stars In Watusi

By FRANCES LEWINE
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson family celebrated inaugural eve with a salute to culture that was a mixture of Beethoven and the Watusi beat. The President went first to an inaugural concert and then out partying with the audience that included famous Americans upon whom he had bestowed the Medal of Freedom.

At the windup, he stood back with the rest to stare in wonderment as his teen-age daughter, Luci, took over the dance floor at the state State Department to dance the Watusi and the frug.

It was an evening in which names-met-names with champagne and candlelight informality.

Three thousand VIPs, the Johnsons included, rose together to wind up the concert in Constitution Hall singing "America the Beautiful."

They had applauded and shouted bravos to violinist Isaac Stern, playing Beethoven, Mozart and Saint-Saens; pianist Van Cliburn, doing a Liszt concerto; and Todd Duncan and Theresa Coleman, presenting the heart-tugging songs of Ger-shwin's "Porgy and Bess."

Johnson quipped at intermission that Van Cliburn "sounded as good as he did at Stonewall," the spot near the LBJ Ranch where he performed at a Texas barbecue for German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

His father's '65 Ford rides quieter than his father's Rolls-Royce

We know it's hard to believe a Ford could ride quieter than the famed Rolls-Royce. But it's a fact. Leading acoustical consultants conducted tests in which three V-8 powered Fords (Galaxie 500 Sedan, new Galaxie 500/XL and LTD Hardtops) with automatic transmissions rode quieter than a new Rolls-Royce. The tests were certified by the U.S. Auto Club. Of course, the best test of all is to get behind the wheel yourself . . . and listen to a '65 Ford in action.

That's what Chuck's father did. Ford's quietness really impressed him. But it wasn't the quietness alone that sold him. He shopped around and found that Ford offers features and models and quality that simply aren't matched by other cars in its class. For example:

- 100% new body—strongest Ford body ever.
- New frame "tunes out" vibration.
- Decorator-appointed interiors in LTD's, thick nylon carpeting.
- More luggage space than in most competing cars—trunk holds four 2-suiters standing upright with room left over.

- Thrifty, quiet new Big Six—the biggest Six offered by any car in Ford's class . . . 289-cu. in. V-8 in XL's and LTD's.
- All automatic transmissions have three speeds, not two as in some competing cars—smoother shifting, more economy.
- Silent-Flo ventilation (in 4-door hardtops) provides fresh air in car with all windows shut.
- Handy reversible key works either side up.

There's more . . . much more in a Ford than you'd expect for the money. Visit your Ford Dealer and take a test drive soon.

Great Progress Without Strife Johnson's Goal

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Lyndon B. Johnson, inaugurated today to his first full term, declared today the time has come for the United States "to achieve progress without strife and change without hatred."

"Let us reject any among us who seek to reopen old wounds and rekindle old hatreds," the President said in his inaugural address. "They stand in the way of a weeking nation."

Johnson added: "I will lead as best I can. But look within your own hearts—to the old promises and the old dream. They will lead you best of all."

Conflicts Leave Scars

Johnson called on the nation to "join reason to faith and action to experience, to transform our new unity of interest into a new unity of purpose."

"For the time has come to achieve progress without strife and change without hatred," the President said, "not without difference of opinion, but without the deep and abiding divisions which scar the union for generations."

Johnson said his Great Society is not to be "the ordered, changeless, and sterile battalion of the ants."

"It is the excitement of becoming—always becoming, trying, probing, failing, resting, and trying again—but always gaining," he said.

If the nation succeeds, it will be "not because of what we have, but what we are; not because of what we own, but what we believe . . ."

Faith Brings Victory

We believe every man must someday be free," he said. "And we believe in ourselves."

"That is the mistake our enemies have always made," Johnson said. "In my lifetime — in depression and war—they have awaited our defeat. Each time, from the secret places of the American heart, came forth the faith they could not see or even imagine. It brought us victory. It will again."

Johnson said the United States was conceived in justice, and he said that means that all its citizens must "share in the fruits of the land."

"In a land of wealth, families must not live in hopeless poverty," Johnson said. "In a land rich in harvest, children must not go hungry. In a land of healing miracles, neighbors must not suffer and die untended. In a land of learning, young people must be taught to read and write.

Resources Wasted

"For 30 years I have believed this injustice to our people — this waste of our resources — was the enemy."

"Before this generation of Americans is finished, this enemy will not only retreat—it will be conquered."

The President declared that when any citizen "denies his fellow, saying: His color is different, in that moment he betrays America, though his forebears created the nation."

Johnson said the American covenant "called on us to help show the way for the liberation of man. That is still our goal." He said the modern world has brought new meaning to that mission. "If American lives must end, and American treasure be spilled, in countries we barely know, that is the price that change has demanded of conviction," he said.

The President declared that America's course in the world is clear:

"We aspire to nothing that belongs to others. We seek no dominion over our fellow man, but man's dominion over tyranny and misery."

He said every American must find a way to help advance the nation's purposes.

"Without this, we will become a nation of strangers," Johnson said.

Johnson said God has allowed the nation "to seek greatness with the sweat of our hands and the strength of our spirit . . ."

"But we have no promise from God that our greatness will endure . . ." he said. "In each generation—with toil and tears—we have had to earn our heritage again."

Concluding his address, the President declared:

"For myself, I ask only, in the words of an ancient leader: 'Give me now wisdom and knowledge that I may go out and come in before this people; For who can judge this, Thy people, that is so great?'"

Railroad Bomb Plot Admitted

MARQUETTE (AP)—A plea of guilty by Alvin J. Cupp today interrupted the U. S. District Court jury trial here of two Toledo, Ohio, men charged with a railroad tracks bombing in a labor dispute.

Cupp, 32, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy "with others" to violate the federal code's train wreck section.

A government motion to dismiss two other counts was granted by Judge W. Wallace Kent who ordered Cupp continue on $35,000 bond for presentence investigation. The offense carries a maximum five-year prison term.

The judge also granted a defense motion to dismiss charges against codefendant Jack A. Pearl, 34.

Pearl was arrested immediately, however, on complaint of the Marquette County Sheriff's office charging him with perjury. He demanded examination upon Municipal Court arraignment and was released on $1,000 bond to await a hearing Jan. 29.

The charge arose from Pearl's Circuit Court testimony here July 17, 1963, when he claimed he was not a member of the Seafarer's International Union. A stipulation read into District Court proceedings Tuesday indicated that Pearl had been a member of the SIU as well as the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association.

Cupp was a member of the Seafarer's International Union.

Besides the conspiracy allegation, Cupp has been charged in a grand jury indictment in two counts of setting off explosives on Soo Line and Lake Superior & Ishpeming Railroad tracks July 25, 1963, at Marquette.

Pearl had been charged with aiding and abetting plus conspiracy.

The government claims that the bombings took place at the height of a dispute between American and Canadian seamen's unions.

American unions at the time were picketing vessels of the Upper Lakes Shipping Co. of Toronto at several Great Lakes ports. The picketing protested company hiring of crews from the Canadian Maritime Union.

Sleep is more vital to man than food since he can survive longer without food.

By The Associated Press
Bernard (Peck) Hickman has joined the select group of college basketball coaches who have won 400 games. The coach of the University of Louisville became a member when his Cardinals edged Cincinnati 82-80 in three overtimes Tuesday night.

A one-handed shot from the corner by Joe Liedtke, 6-foot-7 sophomore from Erie, Pa., with five seconds left in the third extra period gave Hickman his historic milestone in his coaching career that started in 1945. Now in his 22nd season at Louisville, Hickman-coached teams have won 400 and lost 162, including an 11-4 mark so far this season.

In other games on a national program held to a minimum by midyear exams, Duquesne ended DePaul's eight-game winning streak 73-69. Purdue downed Notre Dame 78-74. Cornell made it seven in a row by defeating Colgate 92-83 and Harvard handed Dartmouth its 25th straight Ivy League setback 91-79. None of the Top Ten teams in The Associated Press poll saw action.

A Louisville turnout of 9,816 saw the Cardinals blow an early 13-point lead and rally to beat Cincinnati, a defeat that virtually eliminated the Bearcats from the tough Missouri Valley Conference race.

The regulation game ended 69-69 and neither team scored in the first overtime. Ronald West's basket for Cincinnati created a 76-76 tie after the second OT. West again tied the score for the Bearcats at 80-80 with 18 seconds to go in the third OT and set the stage for Liedtke's game-winning shot.

Eddie Cramer with 24 points was high scorer for Louisville, now third in the MVC with a 4-2 mark behind Wichita and St. Louis. Ron Krick led Cincinnati with 19.

Little 5-foot-9 Willie Somerset flipped in 42 points at Pittsburgh to lead Duquesne over DePaul. He put the Dukes ahead for good at 56-55 on a jump shot from the corner with eight minutes left.

Emeralds Gain Revenge; Nudge Holy Name 71-66

Coach Rudie Brandstrom's Manistique Emeralds, who lost one from the foul line at Munising last week, won one from the charity lane here last night, decisioning Holy Name 71-66.

Outscored by three field goals, 29 to 26, the lanky Manistique cagers made the most of their opportunities from the free throw line by canning 19 of 28 shots, including two which resulted from technical fouls on Crusader players.

Manistique gained revenge for a 73-66 setback suffered to Holy Name earlier in the season on the Emerald court.

Cooks Edges Engadine '5

COOKS—The Cooks Clippers edged Engadine 68-61 in non-conference competition here Tuesday night, winning with a brief bucket barrage in the closing minutes of the contest.

The teams battled to a 14-14 deadlock in the first quarter and Coach Norm Jahn's cagers moved out to a 31-30 lead at the half and a 50-48 margin at the three quarter mark.

The Clippers spurred late in the game and then slowed it down to clinch the decision as the Eagles fouled in an effort to get the ball.

Phil Hartman, operating under the bucket against the taller Eagles, pumped in 27 points for Cooks. Jack Archie, 6 foot 2 1/2 inch sophomore, paced Engadine with 26.

Engadine won the jayvee preliminary, 47-38.

Dinner Honors Keane, Cards

HOUSTON (AP) — Ken Boyer and Tim McCarver of the St. Louis Cardinals and former manager Johnny Keane were among the guests of honor Tuesday night at Houston's fifth annual baseball dinner.

For a night, at least, Keane was not yet the manager of the Cardinals and he watched as a movie projector brought back two of the magic moments of the October classic.

There was McCarver, the 23 year-old catcher, whacking a three-run homer over the right-field fence, over the head of a back-pedaling Mickey Mantle, to win the fifth game of the Series.

And there was Boyer to club a grand slam in the fourth game, on an Al Downing change-up, to beat the Yankees in that one, 4-3.

"Thanks for showing the movie," said a grinning Boyer, as he accepted he featured Tris

Sanford Signs Giant Contract

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Right-handed pitcher Jack Sanford, who was forced from action in mid-1964, with an arm ailment, signed his 1965 San Francisco contract Wednesday, the second Giant to come to terms.

Sanford, who won 24 games including 16 in a row in 1962, was only 5-7 last season when plagued by circulatory trouble in his pitching arm. He underwent surgery in July to clear a blockage in the main artery.

Sanford tested his arm in December at the Arizona Instructional League and said he felt no pain nor numbness. His new contract is believed to call for a salary of between $30,000 and $35,000.

Tuesday's victory was Manistique's fifth in nine starts. The defeat was Holy Name's third against seven wins.

The game, one of four this season in which Holy Name is experimenting with three officials, had its confusing moments. With three technicals dotting the action, and one of them resulting in a replay when the free throws were shot in the wrong order, the outcome was decided on the line. The Crusaders had 18 chances but connected on only 8 of them.

After Holy Name took an early lead in the first period, Manistique solved the Crusader press and closed the quarter with a 16-14 advantage.

The Crusaders battled back to regain the lead until late in the second period when Jon Cameron, Mike Gray and Tom Brawley spurted with a field goal and five free throws to give Manistique a 34-28 margin at the intermission.

Manistique clung to its lead through the third period and spread the gap to a dozen points at one stage, but the Crusaders rallied to go in front 64-63, on a field goal by John Lark with 1:37 remaining in the contest.

Doug Nelson hit a free throw to tie for the Emeralds and Brawley tipped in a bucket to make it 66-64. Cameron canned a jumper from the corner and added a pair of free throws with 42 seconds left to ice the decision. Walt Veldman tallied a consolation bucket for the Crusaders in the closing seconds and Gray tossed in another free throw for the Emeralds.

Each team had three players in double figures with Holy Name's Frank Trotter taking scoring honors with 24 points on 11 field goals and two free throws. Veldman added 17 and Jim Micheau 10 before fouling out in the final minute.

Cameron hit on an assortment of drives and jumpers to pace the Emeralds with 22 points. Brawley and Eric Blomquist gave him strong support with 18 points apiece.

Manistique also won the jayvee preliminary, 58-51.

Stress Accuracy In Filing Personal Property Forms

The Schoolcraft County tax department today announced that 90 per cent of the personal property forms being returned to the office are filled out incorrectly.

Owners of personal property were urged by Henry V. Trippe Jr., to use care in filling out the form, which has been changed considerably as a result of legislation passed in 1964 and becoming effective this year, as determined by the State Tax Commission.

Many mistakes are occurring in the inventory, tools and notary section. Each form must be signed and the correct information provided in accordance with the letter and instruction sheet accompanying the forms.

New penalties have been added for non-compliance or willful neglect in filing the form, Trippe said. In these cases, direct criminal action may be taken. Trippe says the department would not like to see this happen and noted the department acts as an "audit board" for the supervisor or assessor and therefore is subject to penalties if the equalization process in working these forms is done unfairly or incorrectly.

Students Discuss Chosen Careers As Educators

Student teachers from Northern Michigan University who have been doing their practice teaching at Gladstone High School presented an interesting panel discussion on their reasons for preparing for a teaching career at the regular meeting of Central P.T.A. Monday evening at the James T. Jones School. Wallace Cameron and Dr. Carl Olson moderated the discussion.

Spring Tourist Drive Planned

DEARBORN (AP) — When spring blossoms in Michigan this year, the State Tourist council will be spending a record $200,000 to make sure out-of-state tourists know all about the state's warm weather attractions.

Plans to spend $165,000 for 34 advertisements in 23 magazines were part of the spring-summer promotion approved at a council meeting, said William McGraw, council director.

That is $20,000 more than the total spring-summer promotion expenditure last year.

The council earlier doubled its autumn and winter budget in authorizing a $300,000 advertising investment for fiscal 1964-65.

"Our record advertising expenditures, combined with other council promotion programs, is expected to draw tens of thousands of new vacation customers to our water-winter wonderland," said Wesley Tebeau of Muskegon, council chairman.
